

TRAVELLING BY FERRY OR WATER TAXI IN CANADA? NEW COVID-19 RESTRICTIONS IN EFFECT

In order to mitigate the spread of COVID-19, the Government of Canada has implemented new measures for passengers travelling by ferry or water taxi.

Ferry and water taxis operating for voyages longer than 30 minutes should, when feasible, conduct a health check of all passengers to detect signs and symptoms of illness (for example, fever, cough, or breathing difficulties) before they board. Should the passenger present COVID-19 symptoms, the operator may deny boarding or require their isolation from other passengers.

Passengers should confirm that they have an acceptable face covering in their possession, or a medical certificate if they can't wear masks due to medical reasons, otherwise boarding of the ferry or water taxi could be denied.

- Passengers may be required to maintain physical-distancing while on board – minimum of 2 metres.
- Passengers may be required to wear a face covering that covers their mouth and nose, or to remain isolated from others.
- For open-deck ferries that carry vehicles, passengers may be asked to remain in their vehicles while on-board, and to refrain from using public areas.

Important: No person should provide answers to the health check or questions in a way that they know to be false or misleading.

It is the traveller's responsibility to have the appropriate face covering or a medical certificate if they can't wear one due to medical reasons.
